1. What should I say to school about being a young carer?

Why is it important that my school knows I'm a carer?

Chat with your family

Talk with your family and decide what info you want to share with school.

Make sure your school understands any special arrangements they need to make to help you and your family.

Why should I tell school?

- If you don't tell anyone, then you may not get the right support you need as a young carer.
- They may be able make allowances for you, e.g. let you keep your phone on you to check on the person you care for.
- Teachers will be more understanding towards your situation.
- The school can keep a list of how many young carers they have.

3. How can my school help me?

How can my new school support me?

There are things schools can do to make sure they support their young carers as well as they can.

- Through taking part in the Angel Award, they can become a 'Carer-Friendly' school. This means they raise awareness about young carers in school and teach PSHE lessons about understanding who young carers are.
- They may already run a young carers group or may wish to set up a young carers group. Young carer groups bring young carers your age together to chat, have fun, play games and offer support.
- Schools can provide you with someone to talk to if things are quite difficult at home.

4. How will I manage with my caring role?

If teachers know about your caring role they will be more understanding. If you are feeling overwhelmed, remember to tell them, or the young carer lead.

Speak to someone from Surrey Young Carers and see how they can help with your caring role. If you'd like, they can also speak to school on your behalf.

Your school can put you in touch with a school counsellor to speak about your worries.

Talk to your parents/carers about your worries and see how they can help with your caring responsibilities.

What if I can't cope with school work and caring responsibilities?

What about bullying?

- If you feel like someone is bullying you, then tell your form tutor.
- You can tell the young carer lead if there is one.
- Don't keep it to yourself and talk to someone who can help.

5. How can I get ready for my new school?

The more you know about something new, the better prepared you feel! And it's true for school! Why not take a look at your new school's website and see what you can find out

My new secondary school is

The school website address is

Online 'School Scavenger Hunt'!

How much of the following information can you find on your new school's website?

- 1. What is your new head teacher's name?
- 2. What time does registration start?
- 3. How long do you have for lunch?
- 4. Find three different clubs you can join.....
- 5. What is the date of the first day back for Autumn Term?
- 6. Does your new school have a young carers' policy? If so, does it have the name of the young carer lead in school?.....
- 7. Can you find the section of the website that gives school news?
- 8. Does your new school have a 'house' system? If yes, what are the names of the different houses?.....

More than 6? Great job... you are already getting to know lots about your new school!

Don't forget to have a think about your first day!
Check out the journey before day 1! Make sure you know the way to school, how long it will take and which friends you might go with. Have a test run of the journey, your uniform and lunch box!

6. Activity – my ‘Coat of Arms’

This activity helps you think about what’s important to you, and how you feel about yourself.

On the next pages is a blank ‘Coat of Arms’.

Each section can represent a different part of you!

- Your caring role / your family / home life / pets
- Your hopes for the future / goals / ambitions / dreams
- Your favourite things: hobbies, interests, book, TV shows, films, food, school subjects etc.
- Something you are proud of: achievements, skills, special talents, sport, school or games etc.

You don’t have to draw pictures if you don’t want to; use symbols instead. You could even use pictures from old magazines and newspapers and create a collage. It’s up to you – get creative!

Use the blank ‘coat of arms’ on the next page if you like, or try it digitally, or on a big bit of paper. You choose.

We would love to see your finished designs! So do take a picture and email it to us at syc@actionforcarers.org.uk
