

Are you caring for someone living with psychosis?

Would you like to join us for a chat?

We are looking for both current and former carers for individuals who experience psychosis so that we can talk with you about your experiences caring for your loved one.

Our aim is to aid people in similar situations by working with health and welfare services to improve support that is available for carers.

By speaking to one of our student researchers on a one-to-one basis, you will have the opportunity to freely and confidentially discuss your journey as a carer and also share your views on the support provided to you.
